2023-24

Title of the course: Parliamentary Democracy and India

India is considered the world's most populous democracy. It follows parliamentary system. parliamentary democracy is system of government citizens elect their representatives that make legislative parliament. Legislative parliament has power to make laws and important decision for the nation. Thus, this parliament directly represent the people. In parliamentary democracy, the Prime Minister who is elected as member of parliament as well elected by the other members of parliament as the leader; the Prime Minister. In parliamentary democracy, the Prime Minister has the law-making decisions and who works directly with other elected members in the legislature. In presidential democracy, the president has more power. India follows parliamentary democracy. Therefore, it is important for young minds to understand it completely. With the purpose to provide knowledge of democracy in relation to India, this course was conducted.

Twenty students enrolled in the add-on course this year. Prof. M. H. Makawana introduced the course. He explained genesis of democracy and nationalism in Europe. He also explained ideological differences between Indian nationalism and European nationalism. Prof. M.B. Deshmukh explained Europe and parliamentary democracy along with constitutional monarchy and parliamentary democracy. He also explained origin of Indian nationalism and merge of Hindu nationalism and clash with Muslim league. Dr. Vandana Parmar elaborated different forms of democracy and how democratic values become popular in British India. She also explained how was very first election (1951-52) was conducted in India.
