Report of Add on Course
(2019-2020)

Course Name: English Phonetics

Department: English

English phonology is the system of speech sounds used in spoken English. Like many other languages, English has wide variation in pronunciation, both historically and from dialect to dialect. In general, however, the regional dialects of English share a largely similar (but not identical) phonological system. Among other things, most dialects have vowel reduction in unstressed syllables and a complex set of phonological features that distinguish fortis and lenis consonants (stops, affricates, and fricatives). Phonological analysis of English often concentrates on or uses, as a reference point, one or more of the prestige or standard accents, such as Received Pronunciation for England, General American for the United States, and General Australian for Australia. Nevertheless, many other dialects of English are spoken, which have developed independently from these standardized accents, particularly regional dialects. Information about these standardized accents functions only as a limited guide to all of English phonology, which one can later expand upon once one becomes more familiar with some of the many other dialects of English that are spoken.

The students enrolled in the add on course and they were eager to learn correct English pronunciations and they listened all the experts attentively. Prof.D.R.Mehta, HOD of English Department explained how to produce speech sounds, types of vowels and consonants before the students. Prof.Dr.Rahul Patel talked about Long vowels, diphthongs and The larynx, Respiration and voicing with practical examples. Prof. J.R.Suthar explained Plosives, Fortis and lenis with different examples. Prof. Palak Vyas talked about long vowels, diphthongs and trip thongs. On the whole, the course was conducted with Great Spirit and enthusiasm.
